Special Presentation

John Bedell introduced Bruce Burns, who was one of the 25,000 volunteers chosen for the 2010 Vancouver Olympics.

Bruce loves skiing and has been known to say "skiing is an up and down hill matter!"

Bruce's pictures, memorabilia and amusing narration gave us a real feel for the 21st Olympics. The first World Olympics, in 1924, was in Chamonix, France and included 16 nations and 16 events. Canada's hockey team won gold that year. This year there were 82 nations participating in 15 sports, with Canada winning 14 gold, 7 silver and 7 bronze.

Whistler was a great site for the Olympics, with improvements such as the Sea to Sky Highway and the peak to peak gondola.

Bruce worked in the medal plaza each day, ushering athletes and dignitaries. There were approximately 8,000 attendees, nightly, to view the festivities of the day. It was a thrill every time the Canadian anthem was played! Each night ended with fireworks and Bruce's seven-hour shift finished at 10:30 p.m.

Perks for he and Joey included lovely official clothing, great meals, transportation, staying at their daughter's cabin at Whistler, the thanks of the crowd and wonderful memories.

Derek Jeffery thanked Bruce, saying he deserved a medal for his excellent report and sense of humour.
